Come and enjoy all Cambridge has to offer! Cambridge offers a range of attractions, including historic buildings, delightful parks, and delicious food. Whether you're interested in culture, history, or outdoor activities, Cambridge has something for everyone.

Cambridge is home to several universities and colleges, including the University of Cambridge, which is one of the oldest and most prestigious universities in the world. The city is also known for its beautiful architecture, including the famous Cambridgeshire Roundabout, which is a popular spot for locals and tourists alike.

In addition to its cultural and historical attractions, Cambridge is also a great place to relax and enjoy the outdoors. The city has several beautiful parks and gardens, including the University of Cambridge Botanic Garden, which is one of the largest and most impressive botanic gardens in Europe.

So why not visit Cambridge and discover all that it has to offer? Whether you're a history buff, a nature lover, or simply looking for a relaxing getaway, Cambridge is the perfect destination.
The hill to the north, north of the Saxon farm on the other hand, contains the remains of a Saxon farm. The name Cockayngham is an ancient Saxon pronunciation of the place-name, which means 'cow field.'

The Red Road, which runs north from Chilton, is a prehistoric trackway. The name Woodstock refers to the wood, and the wood was a common feature of prehistoric settlement patterns. The area around Woodstock was a large and green space, with a large number of trees and bushes, providing a natural barrier between the different settlements.

The early village of Gammage was located on a small rise, and the church at Gammage was built in the middle Ages. The church is dedicated to St. John the Baptist, and the dedication to this saint is said to have inspired the character of Woodstock's first shepherd, who was named after St. John the Baptist.
